3. Interactive Form 1023 update

The IRS's Exempt Organizations (EO) office has updated its alternate version of Form 1023, Application for Recognition of Exemption. The application, which incorporates changes suggested by the public, became available at the end of December and includes information about the current user fee.

View the application at:

<http://www.stayexempt.irs.gov/StartingOut/InteractiveForm1023Application.aspx>

The Interactive Form 1023 (i1023) features pop-up information boxes for most lines of the form. These boxes contain explanations and links to related information on IRS.gov and StayExempt.irs.gov, EO's educational website. Once completed, applicants will print and mail the form and its attachments, just like the standard Form 1023.

Please send your comments about this form to tege.eo.ceo@irs.gov.

Anticipated i1023 benefits:

- Applicants will be able to submit a more complete form
- IRS processing time will be reduced
- Applicants will receive a tax-exempt determination more quickly

The i1023 is based on recommendations by the IRS's external Advisory Committee on Tax-Exempt and Government Entities (ACT).
