Muni Investors: Beware Of The De Minimis Tax Rule.

- The recent rise in interest rates has exposed certain municipal bonds priced at a market discount to the de minimis tax rule.
- This rule causes the accretion of the bond discount to be taxed at the marginal income tax rate.
- Muni investors unaware of the de minimis rule could buy a bond at a seemingly attractive yield to later find out the effective yield is much lower.

The recent rise in interest rates has created a situation where tax-exempt municipal bonds trading at a discount could be subject to what is known as the “de minimis” tax rule. The rule applies to bonds purchased at a market discount below a threshold determined by the IRS.

This is a problem because most investors choose municipal bonds for tax-free income. Giving up a portion of your return to the IRS is not something any investor wants to do.

Your broker or bond salesman should advise you if a bond you are considering purchasing or selling qualifies for the de minimis tax. Don't rely on your broker. Become an informed investor by learning about the rule for yourself.
