- And finally, Because Everyone Knows that Six Tigers is Just too Many is brought to us this week by Hauser v. Ventura County Board of Supervisors, in which a woman applied for a permit to keep "up to" five live tigers on her property, despite the presence of 56 residences and two summer camps in the immediate vicinity. Sure, lives may be lost in the most horrific manner imaginable, but we must weight the cost of up to five tigers mingling with children against the almost-certain alleviation of the neighborhood's yappy little dog infestation.
