- And finally, We Just Needed a Little Time to Think it Over is brought to us this week by Ucci v. Town of Coventry, in which two brothers sought a declaratory judgment that they were the owners of a disputed strip of land. Town objected, arguing that said strip of land had been dedicated as a public way. Court agreed that an offer of dedication had indeed been made. Court also noted that the Town was required to respond to the offer of dedication within a reasonable amount of time and that – just perhaps – such period had elapsed due to the fact that the offer had been made 67 YEARS AGO. Shout-out to the Town of Coventry, Rhode Island for putting our collective procrastination problems in perspective.
