Martin v. City of Rochester

Supreme Court of New Hampshire - June 9, 2020 - A.3d - 2020 WL 3053479

Plaintiff brought action alleging that city's technical review group (TRG) was public body for purposes of Right-to-Know Law.

After bench trial, the Superior Court entered judgment in city's favor, and plaintiff appealed.

The Supreme Court held that:

- TRG was not "advisory committee" subject to Right-to-Know Law's open meeting requirement, and
- Trial court's determination that city's copy fee schedule was commensurate with "actual cost" of producing photocopies was reasonable.
