

Bond Case Briefs

Municipal Finance Law Since 1971

---

- GASB Hosting Series of CPE Webinars on the Preliminary Views, Revenue and Expense Recognition.
- How to Account for Capital Assets: GFOA Webinar
- Fitch Ratings Updates Coronavirus Scenarios for U.S. State and Local Tax-Supported Issuers.
- Taxing Disclosures: Municipal Securities Issuers and COVID-19
- A Technology Solution For Muni Bond Disclosure.
- Citigroup Sees Election as Bullish for Munis No Matter Who Wins.
- And finally, I'd Feel Much More Comfortable If You Just Went Ahead and Robbed The Place is brought to us this week by Rawson v. Recovery Innovations, Inc., in which a Mr. Kenneth Rawson (as you do) "made comments about automatic weapons and mass murder to a bank teller." "When Rawson re-entered the same bank the next day, the bank employees called the sheriffs." After Mr. Rawson was disarmed and involuntarily committed, he denied having any problem other than "the bank and police misunderstanding." Oh, that little misunderstanding. While committed, Mr. Rawson was, "argumentative and denied having a mental illness, denied needing antipsychotic medications, and denied having suicidal or homicidal ideations," which sounds to us very much like the typical BCB employee performance review.