These States Are Moving to Slash - or Eliminate - Property Taxes on Your Home.

Key Takeaways

- Montana and North Dakota have lowered property taxes in their states, which had been rising along with soaring home values.
- Several other states, including Florida, Ohio and Kansas, are also looking at ways to reduce or eliminate the taxes charged based on home values.
- Some states are also trying to replace funding lost from property tax collections, which are often used to pay for schools and other essential services.
